COURT CONSIDERS SALARY BILL

PROPERTY VOTERS ISSUE BONDS

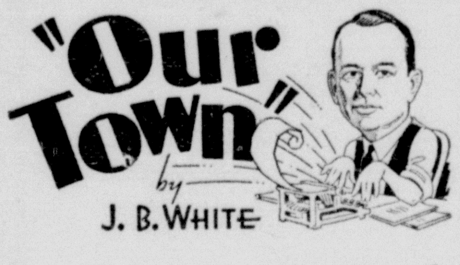
NEW SCHOOL UNIT ASSURED

Cameron property owners have authorized issuance of $36,000 in bonds of the city to pay for the new vocational educational building and gymnasium.

In a special election here last Thursday the issue carried by a vote of 152 to 72. The vote imposes a tax of 15c on the hundred dollar valuation.

The city council will meet on January 7 to discuss printing and selling of the bonds.

The federal goernment will give the city $19,000 in a special grant under PWA. Contract has already been let for this building.



An ideal citizen is the one who sees clearly and ever something good in Cameron, and never loses the opportunity to spread that good news abroad that others might derive the benefits therefrom, whose unselfishness prompts him to want others to share opportunities, health and pleasure which his home city offers.

Loyalty is the first requisite for the ideal citizen. The love for the place and his neighbors which dismisses the thought of self interest or policy and resolves itself into the knowledge of duty when he does all in his power to make the city a better place in which to live.

There are three distinct attitudes which a citizen may assume toward the place in which he lives, which furnishes him food, shelter and association for himself and family, to boost, to remain quiet or to knock. The booster is that ideal citizen who is ever found at the front when any movement is launched which might tend to the advancement of the interest of the city. While others see darkly, to him good is visible at all times. The quiet citizen is satisfied to let the neighbor do the work and content to lull the city asleep and let it rest. The knocker is the man who is without a country. There is no room for him anywhere, his presence dampens the enthusiasm of every man or group of men who unfortunately come in contact with him. Having no faith in his own ability to go forward, he naturally lacks faith in his home city to do so.

You have the chance to belong to either of the three classes. If you are a booster, your neighbor knows it well and will boost you. If you are aligned with the quiet class, you will not be regarded one way or the other, for the man who selects to steer in the middle of the stream, gets no support from either side. If unfortunately you are a knocker, get ready to be knocked, for evidently it is coming to you. As you give, so will it be meted out to you.

Cameron would be an ideal city if only there were more ideal citizens. Let's have them.

"God, love and money" are given as the "three prime consolations known to man in the difficulty of his life" by Christopher Morley. Morley says that with all three consolations man is supremely happy, with one of them he is contented and with none of them his life is filled with despair and is empty of all joy.

Every community knows its members who having God ask nothing more from life. With them God is love and money and life itself. There are other men and women who have love and desire nothing more. They obviously give neither thought nor care to God or money. As for members of the human family who are happy with their "money bags" they appear contented in their work of making and spending money. All three of these groups seem to find

Meningitis Vaccination Is Advised By Dr. W. R. Newton, County Health Officer In Statement Wednesday

In answer to many inquiries as to the prevention of meningitis, I set forth the following:

1. Do not listen to rumors. Depend upon your health officer and physician for accurate information.

2. Avoid overwork and undue fatigue.

3. If a person has symptoms of headache, fever and backache, he should consult his family doctor at once.

4. All suspicious cases should be isolated immediately. The state law requires a quarantine about all houses where meningitis exists.

5. Children are much more susceptible than adults and should be kept away from crowds.

6. Cough into your handkerchiefs.

7. Fresh air and sunlight are important factors in preventing meningitis.

No irritating anticeptics, only oily sprays or nose drops also help in prevention.

9. Vaccination is another great help in the prevention of meningitis. There has been some confusion with infantile paralysis in this respect. Let it here be definitely known that cerebro- spinal meningitis is an entirely different disease from infantile paralysis and there is no similarity between the vaccine prophylaxis of infantile paralysis and the vaccine prophylaxis of cerebro-spinal meningitis. The vaccination against meningitis is a safe, sound, scientific procedure, ad no harm whatever has resulted from its use. In other words, it is along the same sound, scientific lines as other vaccinations, such as typhoid fever vaccination, etc., and is given in the same way as typhoid fever vaccination.

As an illustration to the public of the value of this vaccination against meningitis, I mention the situation in Turkey where vaccination was made compulsory in the schools, factories, prisons and similar institutions. Nearly a hundred thousand persons were vaccinated in one month. The epidemic was reduced from over one thousand cases a year to only fifty cases a year.

So far in all vaccinations against cerebro-spinal meningitis there has been no bad results.

I feel that vaccinations against meningitis is one of the best safeguards against that disease.

There are always some persons who are prejudiced, or uninformed in the advances of science and some of these persons may condemn meningitis vaccination just as typhoid fever and diptheria and small pox vaccinations were condemned in the past. (We recall that when the bath tub was invented laws were enacted against its use.)

Meningitis vaccination is a safe scientific procedure and I reccommend it.

No Election On Wet-Dry Poll

No election will be ordered by the Commissioners' Court for Milam county unless another petition is signed and presented for repeal of prohibition.

The court voted two weeks ago to declare the election held on December 3 void but will not reorder the election, it was said.

Milam county is the center dry spot of a tier of Central Texas counties. Wet counties are: Falls, Williamson, McLennan, Burleson and Lee.

MOTHER!

with your Child's Cold

Rub on VICKS VAPORUB

Often, "mere colds" have serious consequences. It is dangerous to neglect a cold—equally dangerous to experiment with half-way measures.

Feel safe! Use Vicks VapoRub—the proved external method of treating colds. No risks of constant internal "dosing", which so often upsets delicate digestions and lowers resistance when most needed.

DOUBLE DIRECT ACTION

Just rubbed on at bedtime, VapoRub fights a cold direct—two ways at once—by stimulation and inhalation. This combined poultice-vapor action loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—eases difficult breathing—helps break congestion. Often by morning the worst of the cold is over.

New Year Thoughts Advanced For All

By Chas. J. Brown

As we begin the New Year of 1936, let us begin it right by forgetting self and putting others first. If each person in the United States thought only of self what a miserable nation ours would be. If we are to amount to much in this modernistic world in which we now live, we must let others be the sole beneficiaries of our works.

First we must start at home—in our own neighborhood. Do nothing that would offend our neighbors; try and work to the benefits of others in whatever we do. If we are just merely a farmhand, or in some commercial business or whatever our task may be, we must work to the benefits of others.

Can we imagine how great the word "others" really is. Let's think only of "others" in the New Year to come and when 1936 has gone, count the many new friends we have made. The last word of one of our greatest noblemen, General Booth sent by Western Union was "Others."

One way in which we can make others happy is to always meet the public with a smile. As one of our great writers said: "Smile and the world smiles with you; sigh and you sigh alone." Do you want to be separated from others with a sigh. No, no one wants to be separated from friends on account of a worthless frown. It is just as easy and much more pleasant to wear a smile at all times rather than a frown. When we smile we are well thought of, otherwise we will be thought less of.

In the conclusion of this brief column let us think of two outstanding verbs in the English language. These two are: to have and to be. Which will we choose in the New Year. Are we going to think of what we have or what we may accomplish and have at the end of 1936 or will we think of what we will be at the end of 1936. Let us forget the verb to have and look forward to be the best friend, neighbor or whatever we might be during the next 12 months and see what we are at the end.

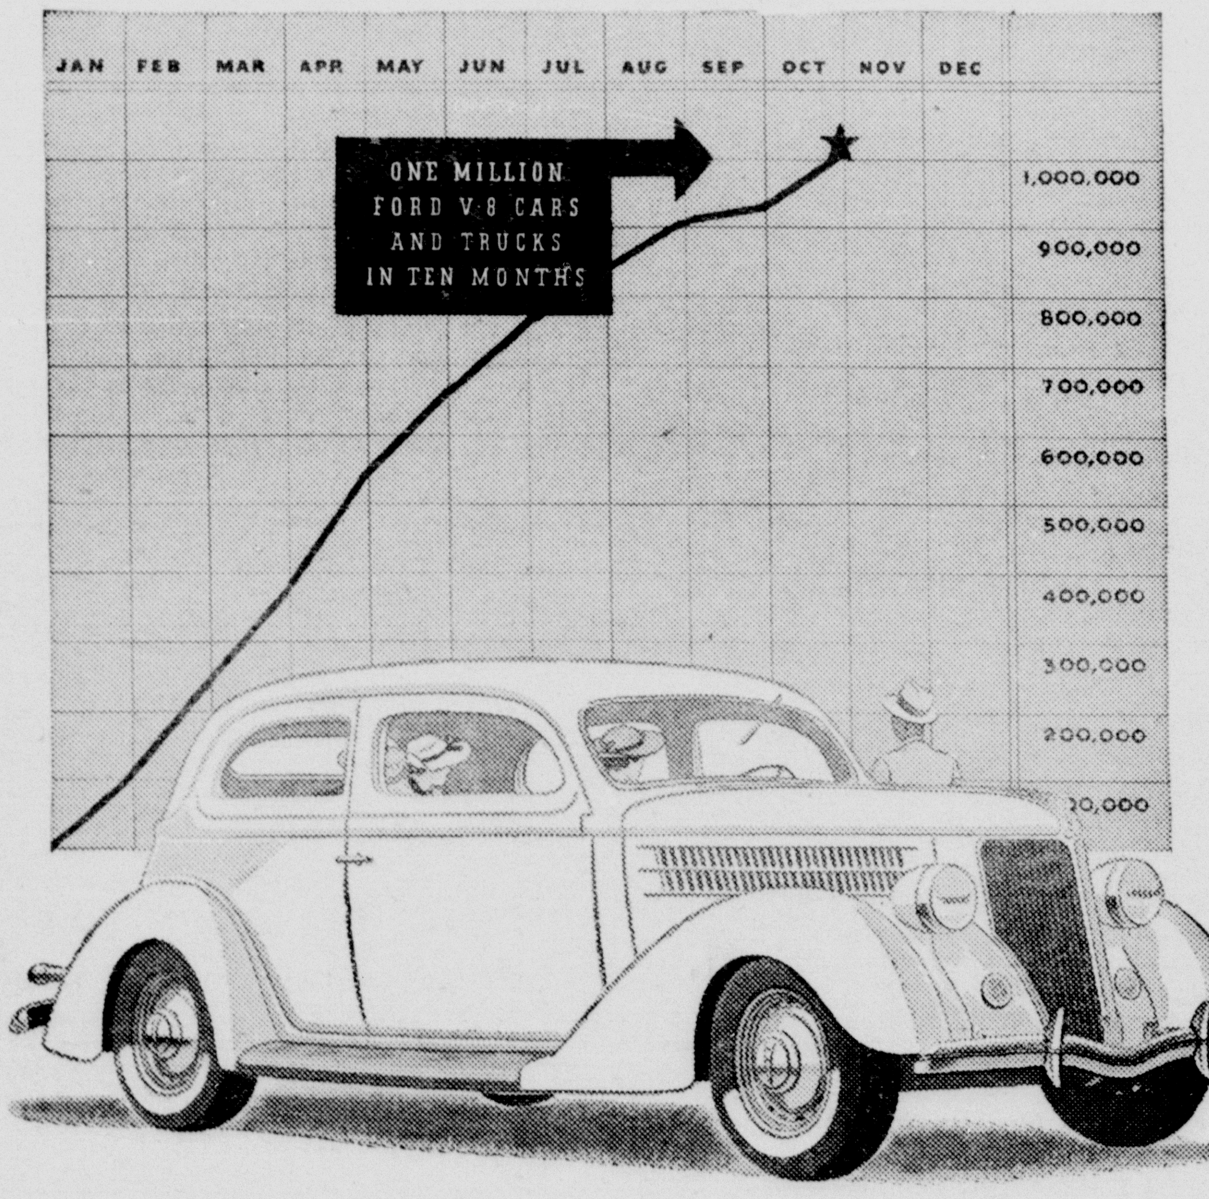
V·8 LEADERSHIP



ON OCTOBER 31 of last year, Henry Ford announced his intention to build a million Ford V-8s in 1935. We are pleased to report that this goal was reached in exactly ten months instead of a full year.

One million cars and trucks is an impressive total. But figures by themselves mean nothing. It is what they represent that counts. Selling a V-8 at a low price has brought a new kind of automobile within reach of the people. Producing it has provided steady work for hundreds of thousands of men in the Ford plants, in associated industries and on the farm.

These million Ford V-8 cars and trucks have helped to make things better all around. In the first ten months of 1935 the Ford Motor Company paid out, in the United States alone, $140,119,326.00 in wages and $523,111,389.00 for materials.

Samoyed Dog Guards His Reindeer Like Shepherd

The Samoyed, a semi-nomadic race of people living in northeastern Russia and Siberia—and from whom the dog derives his name—depend upon him for herding the reindeer that supplies their food and clothing, says an authority in the Los Angeles Times. Well protected from the snow and sharp ice by thick fur between the toes, which almost covers the black pads, his quick feet—propelled by straight, heavy-boned muscular legs, stiffles well down—carry him at good speed in driving and rounding up his charges. His speed and great endurance have also been advantageously utilized to furnish the sole means of transportation—for he is their sledge dog—as important to their life as food and fuel.

Of the large family of Arctic dogs comprising the wolf-spitz or Pomeranian group that carry their chrysanthemum-like tails, pompon fashion, close to their backs—he has, however, little of the width of jaw that characterizes the chow and other Asiatic types. His powerful head is wedge shaped with a broad flat skull, muzzle of medium length and tapering foreface, into which black, intelligent eyes, wide apart, are deeply set. Rims encircling the eyes are likewise black, as are also the nose and lips.

With these exceptions, the dog, from the top of his sharp erect ears, wellhaired inside and out, to the tip of his bushy tail, is pure snow white in color except for slight shading or spots of color that appear occasionally on the ears.

Earth Furnishes Source of Music for Bolivians

A land of sheer mountain peaks, with towns and villages situated so much nearer heaven that there never is heard a clamor for fresh air, Bolivia should live a life strangely apart, in some respects, from other corners of the globe.

The traveler roaming through the interior will find many strange things. One will hear music in an Indian village, but the music will not be as strange as the instrument. Close analysis will show that old Mother Earth basically furnishes the source of music. In New York you hear jazz bands with brass instruments—the brass furnished by Mother Earth. But in Bolivia the natives don't bother to dig below the surface. They shape their instruments from what grows out of the soil.

The sampona is the favorite musical instrument of the Bolivians. It is made from varying sized reeds. It is a magnified form of a rondador so popular in Ecuador. Much of the music heard in the Indian villages in this region is of melodies handed down for centuries—bits of ancient Inca and pre-Inca tribal songs, chants used in making supplication to the sun god and melodies which accompanied the ritualistic dances given to placate the gods of the earth and the harvest.

The Fenians

Fenian, or Fenian society, is a popular name for the Irish Republic Brotherhood, or I. R. B., a political association of Irish-Americans organized for the overthrow of British authority in Ireland and the establishment of a republic. The name was derived from "fiann," a company of legendary warriors in Ireland under the leadership of the mythical hero, Finn MacCumaill. The modern Fenian movement, adopting the name of the ancient military association, had its first seat among the Irish population in America, which had largely increased since the great famine and exodus of 1846 to 1847. The society was founded in this country by John O'Mahoney in 1858. The principal object of the brotherhood was to supply money and arms to the Irish cause, and in this country the ability to bear arms was not a necessary qualification. The establishment of the Irish Free State removed the reason for existence of the brotherhood, and it is now practically extinct.

Beau Brummell

The real name of Beau Brummell was George Bryan Brummell. He was a splendid spendthrift, at one time a man of wealth, a dresser in exquisite taste, and the arbiter of fashion among the courtiers of the prince of Wales, with whom he was an intimate. Brummell was born in 1778. Early in life he managed to make the acquaintance of the prince and from that time his star was in the ascendancy. He had a fortune, which he spent lavishly. He maintained an extravagant establishment in London until his last penny was gone. For some time he lived on credit. Then, one by one, his friends deserted him. The prince turned against him, and he was obliged to flee to France in order to escape arrest for debt. After some years in wretchedness his mind failed him and he died in a hospital for mendicants in 1840.

First Theater in Capital

Aside from occasional performances given in Blodgett's hotel, which was at the southwest corner of Eighth and E streets, northwest, Washington had no playhouse in its first years. In 1803 a number of citizens met at Tunnicliff's tavern and planned the erection of the first theater in the city. It was built in 1804 on the northeast corner of Eleventh and C streets, and known as the Washington theater. Tunnicliff's was on the southeast corner of Ninth and Pennsylvania, southeast, and was founded in 1796.—Washington Star

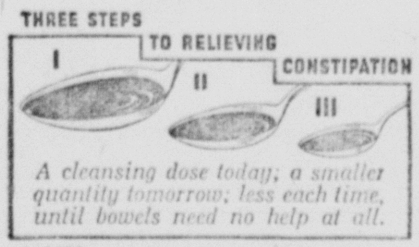
NO UPSETS

The proper treatment for a bilious child



A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

ANY mother knows the reason when her child stops playing, eats little, is hard to manage. Constipation. But what a pity so few know the sensible way to set things right!

The ordinary laxatives, of even ordinary strength, destroy all hopes of restoring regularity.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. The dose can be exactly suited to any age or need. Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.

Doctors use a liquid laxative. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use. The liquid laxative they generally use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Any druggist has it.

Laxative combination folks know is trustworthy

The confidence thousands of parents have in good, old reliable, powdered Thedford's Black-Draught has prompted them to get the new Syrup of Black-Draught for their children. The grown folks stick to the powdered Black-Draught; the youngsters probably will prefer it when they outgrow their childish love of sweets. Mrs. C. W. Adams, of Murray, Ky., writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught (powder) about thirteen years, taking it for biliousness. Black-Draught acts well and I am always pleased with the results. I wanted a good, reliable laxative for my children. I have found Syrup of Black-Draught to be just that."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

UNDER THE COURT HOUSE DOME

By
Berenice Mc Lerran

The Sheriff and his deputies enjoyed a peaceful Christmas. There were no shootings, no killings, no one arrested for drunkness and no burglaries. Sheriff Max Kennedy laughingly remarked that he was glad they were putting him on a salary basis, otherwise if every day was like the days during Christmas week he would starve.

Heard a young Cameron lawyer remark that the Bible was the greatest law book. Wonder how many of them use it.

Even though the last election, held here to determine whether the sale of liquor should be legalized or prohibited was held null and void, this county is still dry. Nothing more is going to be done about the liquor question in this county, unless another petition is presented by voters to the Commissioners Court and asking another election.

No matter which way an election goes the liquor question is probably the most difficult to handle. If the county goes dry, the voters feel the bootlegger is getting too much business and making money that should go into the revenue for the county. Second, if the county goes dry and the illegitimate sale of liquor goes on the officers are blamed for not enforcing the law and are accused of not enforcing the law too strenuously due to politics.

If the county goes wet anxiety is expressed for the safety of the pople on highways and streets, and it is felt that legal sales of liquor will cause more accidents and deaths.

After all, whether the county is wet or dry, we have plenty of liquor here.

"Please do not publish"—a slip of paper with the foregoing words written on it is found frequently on a marriage license stub in the county clerk's office. The couples marrying have various reasons for not having them published. If an error should occur and a license printed that had "please do not publish" on it, in certain cases it would certainly be interesting news to somebody.

Power In Oil

It is said that one of the reasons the British and French Governments tried to patch up a peace between Italy and Ethiopia was that they were convinced that the restriction of oil shipments to Italy would be so harmful to the latter country that it would risk attacking the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

Italy has to import her oil supply. Not to be able to secure oil would mean that her Ethiopian campaign would be entirely blocked. Ships, tanks, airplanes and supply trucks all require gasoline and oil to operate. Without the supply of this essential liquid Italy would not be able to carry on warfare with modern implements.

Japan is very much in the same situation that Italy is. Her greatest military weakness s the poor national supply of oil. Not long ago the Japanese passed a law requiring all foreign companies doing business to erect and store a year's supply of oil, thus creating a military reserve without any expense. Japan must have oil for her industry and her fleets.

The annual Japanese consumption is around two million tons and one-half of this is brought from the Uuited States. Three countries could, if they desired to, prevent Japan from securing this necessary supply. The British could stop their oil shipments and prevent imports from the Dutch East Indies. If the United States shut off the supply, the only other country necessary would be Russia, which is Japan's rival in Eastern Asia. So, should the United States and Gereat Britain decide to oppose Japanese ambitions, an oil embargo would follow.

Seeing the vital importance of oil and gasoline, it would seem that countries like Italy and Japan would seek to develop substitute fuels particularly encouraging the use of alcohol. As long as they are dependent upon imports of oil a coalition of oil producing countries can control their future.

Industry and Politics

Industry, according to the National Association of Manufacturers, is "to enter the political arena" in order to prevent "being destroyed as a private enterprise."

So says Clinton L. Bardo, president of the organization, and his words are the same in spirit as others uttered by leading industrialists at the recent meeting in New York.

Among other statements was the assertion that the only solution for unemployment and relief problems was reemployment through private enterprise which has been thwartd by the administration. These industrialists would like to have the people believe that, if given liberty of action, they would create jobs for everybody. They hope the public has forgotton how they galloped, when in the saddle, along the road that ended in 1929.

The fight of industry is not against the administration now in office any more than it has been against any administration that attempted any regulation of corporate greed and avarice. The fight is not against government interference with private enterprise but with interference that does not put unearned dollars in their pockets.

Now, what do we mean? Simply that industry does not object to tariffs for manufacturers, which helps them, but is against aid for American farmers, which they have to help pay. Industry is not against the lending of millions to ship-builders by the government, or the payment of extravagant rates to the ships that carry the mail, even if against loans to home owners facing foreclosure. Industry is not against governmental loans to banks, railroads and insurance companies to save their corporate structures but is against regulation of anything connected with them in the interest of the welfare of others and particularly against effective regulation of stock and bond issues, skeleton holding companies and other financial devices that while they have been helpful to industry, have been abused, causing the loss of billions of dollars to the investing public.

The Herald does not endorse every regulation and restriction placed upon business but it thoroughly approves those necessary to protect investors and to prevent abuses by monopolies, drunk with economic power. In fact, it is disappointing to find business, as a class, joining to defend minority practices that are condemned by the public, as a whole. The people of the United States, it seems to us, has a right to expect better leadership from the real business of the nation.

So far as the threat to enter politics is concerned, that is not necessary. Business, like the shipbuilders with whom Mr. Bardo was connected in the past, has never failed to be "in politics" to get protection from foreign competition, to seek special favors from the government and, at times, to stifle threatened domestic competition. The threat, openly voiced may indicate a new boldness, including recovery of some of the courage that oozed out during the 1929 crash and the years following.

This much of a warrning, however, to business when it attempts political control of the United States: Don't whimper or whine when the people of the country assert the ballot box majority that exists. For when a popular election regulates business the medicine is going to be bitter. The dose will clear out the economic system, whether the purge cures or kills the patient.

The Townsend Plan

There are many, particularly those over 60 years of age, who are warmly advocating the adoption of the Townsend plan, which provides for the payment to all citizens over sixty years of age two hundred dollars a month on the condition that it be spent within thirty days after its receipt.

The advocates of the Townsend plan think it would be a tremendous boon to business because of the increased demand for goods caused by the spending of so much money. They do not seem to be discouraged by the fact that it would require a hitherto undreamed of amount of money from taxes in order to pay it. In a comparatively small state the requirement would be nearly forty million dollars a year.

The Townsend group is planning to enter national politics and the founder of the idea says that the only two planks in the platform will be the promise to pay the two hundred dollars and the means of raising it by a transactions tax, or a turn-over levy. The Townsendites are planning to poll the members of the Federal House of Representatives and the reports are that the politicians are worried.

One practical politician has suggested, perhaps humorously, that the only way to beat the Townsend plan was to attract more voters by a different method, namely offering one hundred dollars a month to everybody over fifty years of age required to enlist a superior number of voters.

Danger In Japan

Charging that Japan had "ambitions similar to those of the former Kaiser," Senator Key Pittman, Democratic Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, says that it is a "common knowledge that the Japan plans conquest of the entire world."

"Sooner or later," said Senator Pittman, "the United States will be faced with the necessity of fighting for its very existence, and if we wait too long the outcome will be much more doubtful. We can either continue to retreat in the face of Japan's conquests or decide where to take our stand and make it there."

Japan, said the Nevada Senator, counts on England's involvement in Europe and the pacifist sentiment in the United States to keep these two countries from interfering. "There are two things Japan is afraid of and those are the navies of Great Britain and the United States. If it should happen that these navies find it necessary to manuever in the Pacific near Japan, at about the same time, Japan would listen to reason without a shot being fired or a life being lost."

Senator Pittman pointed out that the nine power treaty, guaranteeing Chinese integrity, signed by Japan, the United States and Great Britain, has been violated several times by Japan. "It is time somebody informed the people of this nation of the danger. Once Japan gains full control of China it will be the most powerful nation in the world and will be able to carry out its dreams of conquest."

Sharks' Teeth and Nose Prove Valuable to Them

Sharks never lack for razor-sharp teeth. Functional teeth stand erect on the edge of the jaws in a single row. As these teeth become worn and lost, says a writer in the New York Times, the membrane from the inner surface moves over the edge of the jaw, carrying with it fully developed teeth of a new secondary row. At any given time there are behind the functional teeth a series of reserve rows from five to seven in number, lying recumbent one below the other on the inner surface of the jaw, all in reserve, being covered by a broad band of membrane that extends up over them from the bases of the jaws.

These are the terrible weapons which have ability to slice into the shagreen-protected hides of other sharks, when they bite out hunks just as you would bite a piece out of an apple.

But more important to the shark than even this is his ability to smell. Two prominent nostrils in the anterior extremity of the head and covered with skin flaps permit him to scent his food in an uncanny fashion from unbelievable distances.

Eskimos know that when seal blood is allowed to ooze from a chill bladder placed in an ice hole the sharks, no matter how distant, will scent it on the sea currents and come hurrying in a horrible rush. Woe to the juicy sea animal that cannot escape or hide from the shark once it is scented, for the shark tracks down its prey like a buzzard, and with more decisive results.

Apple Trees From France First Planted in Canada

Sieur De Monts cleared land at Port Royal in 1605 and in 1663 Pierre Martin brought young apple trees from France and planted them at Belle Isle, near Port Royal, says the Montreal Herald. They grew and other Acadian farmers became interested and propagated apples. Having come from the wine-producing part of France, Pierre Martin and his neighbors, no doubt, made choice cider from their apples. The winter evenings would be made cheery by a drink that would sparkle like the champagnes of Normandy.

Scarcely sixty years after Martin had planted his first orchard there were 1,500 apple trees in the vicinity of Port Royal. Beaubassin had 40 acres of land planted to orchards and all thriving well. When the New England colonists entered the country in 1760, they were amazed to find many small orchards, bearing well. They realized that this would be an asset to their farms and before long, many of them had established orchards.

The first apples to be grown in North America were the Gravensteins, the finest apple of Normandy, prized for its juiciness and flavor.

The first apple trees in Quebec were planted in 1663, thirty years after those in Port Royal. The Fameuse was the variety and is still popular.

Postage Stamp Plates

Stamp collectors consider the word typography as a general term embracing all printing done from type and designs in relief without regard for the method used in duplicating the stamp subjects which make up the printing plate, says the Chicago Tribune. The individual designs may be type-set, stereotyped, electrotyped, or even stamped out in a coining press and are usually soldered to each other or to a mounting block in order that none of the parts may loosen in the printing. Typography is cheap when compared to intaglio engraving, and is used by many countries for stamp printing, counterfeiting being minimized by the use of special papers and inks. Carelessness in assembling plates has produced some of the greatest errors in stamps either by allowing one stamp subject, or "cliche" as they are called, to be inverted, or by inserting a cliche of another value in a plate.

Land for the White House

The principal owners of the land on which the city of Washington is built were Daniel Carroll, Samuel Davidson, Notley Young and David Burnes. The land on which the White House stands belonged to David Burnes, an aged Scotchman, who very reluctantly gave up his 600 acres for the federal city when negotiations were in progress for buying up land for the National Capital. Daniel Carroll owned a large tract of land along the eastern branch of the Potomac river, which includes the site of the Capitol.

The Black Watch

The origin of the Black Watch dates from 1729. They wore the dress of their country, a tartan of dark color, which gained for them the Gaelic appellation of Freicudan Du, which translated is Black Watch, in contradistinction to the regular troops, who wore scarlet coats and were called Red soldiers. They engaged mostly in police work until 1740, when they were regularly organized into the Forty-second Regiment of the Line. Their war history began at the Battle of Fontenoy.

Drug Smugglers Cunning

Drug smugglers do not make the London detective's life any more pleasant living. Drug-taking is a spreading habit. Every year the orientals and their agents in suburb and city successfully smuggle tons of cocaine and hundred-weights of opium into England. Efforts to prevent it seem hopeless.

Presidential Electors Once Had More Privilege

Presidents and Vice Presidents of the United States who have been members of different political parties, but served together, included: President John Adams, Federalist, and Vice President Thomas Jefferson, Republican; President Andrew Jackson, Democrat, and Vice President John C. Calhoun, Republican.

In the early days Presidential electors were not bound by political party pledges, but were free to vote as they wished. After the amendment of 1804, selections of Presidents and Vice Presidents were made on separate vote, the result being that it could and did happen they were sometimes members of different political parties.

The germ of the Democratic party is to be found in the anti-Federalists, who opposed the adoption of a federal Constitution. A moderate party, led by Jefferson and Madison, recognized the need of a stronger central government than the articles of confederation afforded, and were alarmed at the centralized tendency manifested by Hamilton and the Federalist party. To this moderate party was given the name of Republicans, about 1792. During the French revolution extreme sympathizers with the new French republic formed so-called "democratic clubs," the fundamental principles advocated by these clubs being equalitarianism and the extreme of liberty for the individual. Though not in complete accord with the Republicans, adherents of these views were forced to act in harmony with the Republicans in opposition to the Federalist measures, and were eventually absorbed by the party which came to be known as the Democratic-Republican, the later official designation of the Democratic party.—Indianapolis News.

U. S.-Canada Boundary Through Center of Lakes

The boundary between the United States and Canada runs through the center of the four border lakes and their connecting channels (Lake Michigan, of course, being entirely within the United States); and jurisdiction over the lakes is shared by the two countries, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Both countries have an interest in maintaining the natural level of the lakes in order to keep the water power at Sault Ste. Marie and at Niagara undiminished, and in order that the depth of harbors and the channels connecting the lakes may not be lessened.

There is a permanent International Waterways commission, consisting of three Americans and three Canadians, that has control of the waters of the lakes for power and other purposes.

Within the territory of the United States shipping and navigation are subject to the same laws and regulations as prevail on the other natural waterways of the United States. On the Canadian side shipping observes the Canadian laws. Each country provides the necessary aids to navigation at its own ports.

Products of Casein

There are several different kinds of plastic material used in place of horn, ivory, celluloid, hard rubber, etc., in making knife handles, all the products of the casein industry. Ordinary cow's milk contains about 3 per cent of casein. Skimmilk is run into vats, a little sour milk or culture of lactic acid bacteria added, and it is allowed to ferment until curdling is complete. Then the clear liquid is run off, the curd washed, pressed into cakes and dried. There are two principal processes for the manufacture of casein plastics. In one of them, the casein is first dissolved in ammonia or an alkali, then dyestuffs, pigments or fillers added to give the right color, and a coagulent such as an acid is added. In the dry process, the casein is powdered and mixed with the dyestuffs, then put through extruding machines or heated calendar rolls, which convert the powder by means of heat and pressure into plastic rods or masses. This is hardened by means of formaldehyde and is seasoned by drying.

Dreaming

The problem of dreams is one concerning which scientists are not entirely in accord. Modern investigation of sleep indicates that special psychic forces do not operate in a dream nor does the entire activity of the brain rest during sleep, but it is always, perhaps with the exception of sound sleep, which lasts only a short time, only a part of the brain that rests. Some parts of the brain do not go to sleep but continue to work, especially after over-stimulation. There have been numerous instances where persons claim to have dreamed solutions to problems, which on awakening they found to be correct, but upon investigation it is believed that in such instances the subject was only in a partial state of sleep.

Strange Monkeys

Probably the strangest monkey is the proboscis monkey with its long flat nose which it uses as a lever to hunt for insects under the bark of rotting rees. Two mutton chop effects f lighter fur coming down from the yes and toward the upper part of the aws add to its weird appearance.

NAME SUITORS OF COUNTESS IN FIGHT FOR RYAN FORTUNE

$8,000,000 Involved in Annulment Proceedings Brought by Mate.

New York.—The astonishing story of how and why the young and beautiful Countess Clarisse Marietta von Wurmbrand-Stuppach became twice engaged before wedding wealthy Clendenin J. Ryan, Jr.—who is now suing to annul their marriage—has been revealed following startling disclosures of the countess' adventures in Europe before her marriage.

These disclosures are now expected to play an important part in Ryan's suit for annulment, which will be bitterly opposed by the countess when it comes up in court this fall. She says:

"I married Clendenin because I love him, not for his money."

Heir to $8,000,000

When he is thirty Ryan will fall heir to $8,000,000 of the $115,000,000 estate of his grandfather, Thomas Fortune Ryan, utility magnate. Any attempts the countess may make to share in this fortune—despite her declaration that she married him only for love—will be fought vigorously by Ryan's lawyers in court.

At present the countess is in Europe visiting her mother, the Dowager Countess Marie, but she plans to return to fight the annulment suit.

In Vienna, detectives backtracking on the Von Wurmbrand-Stuppachs have learned that the dowager countess was arrested in 1933, charged with having defrauded creditors. In police and court files are depositions, letters, an indictment, affidavits, records of testimony, charges and countercharges.

And through them all runs one recurring theme:

"I told them that payment would not be made until after the marriage of my daughter."

That is the dowager countess speaking, admitting she had no money and was heavily in debt, and revealing her determination to marry her daughter off to a wealthy man.

She did eventually, of course, but not until the daughter had been engaged to two men. Baron Karl Buchshoeveden was the first.

Brief Wooing

The baron was wealthy and not parsimonious. To the dowager countess he appeared to be just the man for her daughter. Two days after Countess Clarisse met the baron they were engaged. The wedding date was set for two months later.

In Salzburg the engagement of Countess Clarisse Mariette von Wurmbrand - Stuppach was fittingly celebrated. Her forthcoming marriage would unite an old Austrian house with one of the German nobility.

No one now presented bills to the dowager. Her daughter was marrying a wealthy German.

Arrangements were made so they did not even have to pay for their stay in Vienna, an agreement being made at a large hotel by which payment of the bill would be made after the marriage.

The expense of a trousseau was a problem, but the dowager countess solved it by appealing to the baron, who undertook the financial responsibility.

The baron, however, never paid for the trousseau. He suddenly broke the engagement.

Count Mitrofsky was the second member of the nobility to whom the Countess Clarisse Mariette became engaged. This engagement, too, was broken. The reason is not clearly known.

Then, in February of this year, the Countesse Clarisse, having come to America, was married to Ryan.

Lives Week in Icy Pit After Fall on Mt. Blanc

Paris.—Guy La Bour, who fell into a crevasse while climbing snowy Mont Blanc, told the dramatic story of his week of imprisonment in the lonely ice cavern.

The young Frenchman said that he slipped and tumbled headlong into a crevasse 60 feet deep.

"It was dark, so I wound about me 10 yards of rope, put my feet into a mountain sack, and made the best of things while awaiting the inevitable search.

"In the morning I managed to climb 12 yards, but further effort proved futile. Happily, my food supply, consisting of fruit and flour-meal, lasted for five days, until August 23. Then I ate the wax of my candles."

Lesson on Punctuality Given by Police Judge

Davenport, Ia.—Police Magistrate John Hornby is a bachelor, which may explain his habit of waiting on others. For some time he has been obliged to wait 10 to 20 minutes on attorneys and court attaches before he could open court. Recently the judge took his seat promptly at 9, waited two minutes, and then left. After attorneys and court attendants had cooled their heels for 30 minutes the judge returned and gave them a lecture on punctuality.

Building of Airplanes in U. S. Shows Decrease

Washington.—Six hundred and sixty-nine airplanes were manufactured in the United States during the first six months of 1933, according to Ewing Y. Mitchell, assistant secretary of commerce for aviation.

Of this number, 306 were built for domestic civil use, 212 for military delivery, and 151 for delivery to foreign countries.

The 1933 figure is a decrease as compared with the number for the first half of 1932, when 722 planes were produced. The biggest drop was in the number of planes for military use, 325 being produced for military purposes in the 1932 period. A drop also was noted in the domestic civil use figure, 351 having been built for this class in the 1932 period, while the figure then for foreign shipment was only 46, showing a sharp rise for the 1933 figures.

Of the planes built the first half of this year for domestic and civil use were included 215 monoplanes, 84 biplanes and seven autogiros.

"Bankers' Hours"

. . . Are Not What They Seem To Be.

Many people think that a banker's day starts late and ends early—that a banker spends very little time in actual banking. These people have no conception of the tremendous amount of labor necessary to keep the bank's affairs in the absolutely balanced state that they must be. Millions of clerical operations keep the bank's business in perfect order, night and day—and they are mostly done after the doors have been closed for the day. And then think of the constant 24-hour guard the bank keeps on your money—as efficient as if a cordon of police surrounded it by night and day. No, banker's hours are not easy hours. They are long, long hours needed to build up the institution to which you can point with pride and say "MY bank!"

Quebec Is Oldest Walled City in North America

Quebec, the ancient capital, is the oldest walled city on the continent of North America, observes a writer in the Montreal Herald. No place-name in the country carries with it so much of the historic or the picturesque. Historians do not agree as to its meaning, but the most generally accepted theory is that it is derived from an Indian word meaning "where the river narrows."

Champlain founded the city in 1608 and the story of its growth is indelibly linked with the early history of Canada.

The historic Citadel crowns its heights, 365 feet above the river, and from these cliffs the city slopes down to tide-water level at the St. Charles river. Though the city has kept astride of modern progress it is visited annually by thousands of travelers who carry away memories of its ancient buildings, and Old world streets redolent of the colorful scenes of an earlier day.

It has an ocean port with docks capable of accommodating the largest ocean liners. Near where the great ocean liners dock Wolfe landed in the darkness with his army to take the city from the French. Not far from there the first seagoing steamer ever built in Canada was launched. It was the Royal William, the first ship to cross the Atlantic using steam all the way.

Transits of Venus and When Phenomena Occur

If the orbits of Venus, the earth and the sun were all in the same plane, a transit of Venus—her apparent passage across the face of the sun—would occur once in every 224 days, the time in which Venus takes to make the circuit of her orbit. But, says a writer in Cleveland Plain Dealer, owing to the different inclinations of these orbits it only happens at long intervals, that when Venus passes one of her nodes—or points at which her orbit intersects that of the earth—she is in a direct line between the earth and the body of the sun.

The earth passes the line of these nodes, respectively, on or about December 7 and June 6, so, that transits can only occur near these dates. Usually a pair of transits occur near one of these dates with an interval of eight years between; then 243 years must elapse before a transit can fall upon the same date again. But near the middle of this period—not exactly the middle, because neither Venus nor the earth travels quite uniformly in its orbit—one or two transits will occur at the other date.

There was a transit December 9, 1874, and another December 2, 1882, and another pair of December transits will not occur for 243 years—in 2117 and 2125; but during this period two June transits will occur, in the years 2004 and 2012.

Reading at Distance

From experiments made regarding the most favorable color combinations for reading at a distance, it was found that the most legible print was black upon yellow blackground. The order of merit obtained for different combinations is as follows: (1) black on yellow; (2) green on white; (3) red on white; (4) blue on white; (5) white on blue; (6) black on white; (7) yellow on black; (8) white on red; (9) white on green; (10) white on black; (11) green on red; (12) red on green.

"Have Got" Correctly Used

"Have got" is correctly used to indicate the result of a special effort, as "I went after the book and I have got it." But the use of "have got" for "have" is one of the most common errors in English. In statements concerning possessions, such as "I have got a headache," or "I have got a job," the redundant "got" should be omitted and the word "have" used alone. Also in statements concerning compulsion, similar to "I have got to go," the word "got" should be omitted.

Plant Beds Sterilized

Even plants need the safeguard of sterilization of their habitat on occasions. Operators of greenhouses are forced at times to sterilize the soil in the seed beds to prevent their plants from contracting various plant diseases which can cause thousands of dollars in damage unless prevented. The usual method of sterilization is to heat the soil in the seed beds with steam pipes, the soil being raised to a temperature of 212 degrees Fahrenheit.

The Dorr Rebellion

The Dorr rebellion was the outcome of an essentially democratic movement in one of the last strongholds of conservatism, on the question of manhood suffrage. On May 3, 1842, the "Suffrage Legislature" assembled at Newport, R. I., with Thomas W. Dorr as governor. King, the legitimate governor, proclaimed martial law. The suffrage party appealed to arms. Their troops were dispersed and Dorr fled.

Consistency of Fog

Fog is a heavy mist consisting of tiny globules of water floating in the air. Fogs on or near the sea are clouds come down to earth that spread out more than in the sky. The fog that forms over cities is the damp mist combined with smoke, dust and other impurities in the air. Fogs come when the upper air acts as a blanket and keeps the misty air down until the wind blows it away.

Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps avoid many colds.

If a cold has developed, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime. We were honored by having two distinguished guests for the evening, Rev. and Mrs. Chrales Smith of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Rev. Smith is the president of the Morris Pratt Institute at Whitaker, Wisconsin, the only Spiritualist University. He is also Pastor of the First Spiritualist Church of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. At the request of the Lyceum Superintendent, Rev. Smith offered a few words of congratulation to the Spiritualist workers and members here for their achievements and expressed his delight in being able to visit in the Texas churches while en route to California. Rev. Cervin, the Cameron Pastor, responded to this.

Rev. A. Cervin read the names of the builders of our little temple to the audience so that they might know who were responsible for there being a Spiritualist church in Cameron.

As the concluding portion of the program gifts from the huge Christmas tree were distributed by members of the Junior Class to nearly everyone present. At this time a grab box of small gifts and free award of a hand-painted and worked spread was presided over by Mrs. Carrie Meyer.

Little Rebecca Jean Muse offered the closing recitation, inviting everyone to join the Lyceum that is progressing so wonderfully under the direction of Mrs. Noffs. The superintendent received many compliments and praises on the splendid program rendered.

PUPPY IN POUCH

Spokane, Wash.—When a small pouch was opened here recently, a puppy, only a few weeks old, tumbled out. It was thought the puppy crawled into the pouch in Seattle for a warm snooze and was sealed up by a clerk unaware of its presence.

FIND OLD COINS

Clinton, Conn.—When installing a new furnace in the 100 year old home of Albert Marquard, workman, found two bags of old coins having an estimated value of $1,000, in a flue. The coins are dated between 1817 and 1865 and include many Spanish and French issues.

MOTHER OF EIGHT LEADS STORK DERBY

Likely Winner of Odd Race Says She Isn't Trying.

Toronto.—Ontario's celebrated ten-year "stork derby," purse of $500,000, looks like a walkaway for a contender who declares that she isn't even trying—Mrs. Grace Bagnato, who has given birth to eight children since October of 1926.

The stakes in the "stork derby" were provided by Charles Vance Miller, K. C., prominent Toronto barrister, who died in October, 1928, and who bequeathed the bulk of his fortune to the Toronto woman who gives birth to the largest number of children in the ten years following his death.

With more than seven of the ten years now having passed and with the contenders rounding into the home stretch, Mrs. Grace Bagnato appears to have the inside rail position, always barring the possibility of triplets putting some "dark horse" into the lead.

Plans to Have More.

Runner-up to Mrs. Bagnato in the contest is Mrs. Florence Brown, who has had seven children since the race started, but who is today said to be falling behind.

Mrs. Bagnato, now only in her early forties, has given birth to 22 children, all told, and declares that, irrespective of the Miller trophy altogether, she expects to have two or three more before October of 1936. In fact, she insists that the $500,000 isn't even an inducement at all; although admitting that it, or even a slice of it, would come in very handy indeed.

"But we aren't thinking about the award, at all," insists the Italian matron, younger in appearance than her years. "We're just raising the family that we consider is our duty—and finding it mighty difficult sometimes. If we win the $500,000, it will be fine, wonderful; but if we don't it won't be any disappointment to us, for we aren't counting on it."

Several attempts have been made, in the past, to cancel the "stork derby," on the ground that Miller never seriously intended his estate to be so utilized. Several of his close associates declare that he only drew up the will in question as a joke, and that he intended to prepare a later testament, which would revoke it, but that he died suddenly, before having an opportunity to do so.

Upheld by Courts.

Regardless, however, of the spirit in which the testament may have been drafted, the Ontario courts have already ruled that it is a valid legal document.

The Ontario government, two years ago, moved to set the will aside on the ground that it was contrary to public interest, and to appropriate the estate, uitlizing it for educational purposes.

A protest arose against such a step, however, with the result that the government abandoned its proposal.

Soon afterward it became known that efforts had been made to "buy off" both Mrs. Bagnato and Mrs. Brown, and that certain unidentified men had offered them from $50,000 to $100,000 in cash to asign their rights to the estate. It was suggested, but not definitely established, that these offers might have been made on behalf of the government. Both Mrs. Bagnato and Mrs. Brown declined them, however, taking the stand that a bird in the hand is not worth two in the bush when the bird in question is the stork.

If Mrs. Bagnato—mother of 11 living children and as many more dead—wins the prize, one of the first things she plans to do is to adopt a child, she declares. Then she and her husband hope to buy a small farm, perhaps about 15 acres, on which to raise their family.

Germany Seeks Family Doctors, Not Specialists

Berlin.—Sweeping reforms in the training of medical students will be introduced into German universities this summer.

Hitherto, theory has been considered more than practice, and hours spent in the lecture hall, devoted to study of physiology, botany, chemistry and physics, were out of proportion to those the future doctor spent walking the hospitals.

It is urged that the small groups that form around the hospital patient's bed at the end of the medical course should begin earlier, and the general practitioner be the future ideal, instead of the specialist.

As matters stand today, the sick person who goes to a German doctor usually gets his case diagnosed, and is provided with the name of an expert who will undertake the treatment. In future there are to be fewer specialists and more general practitioners.

Comic Opera Is Making Strides Among Turks

Istanbul.—Turkish comic operá has made such rapid strides recently that it is getting into trouble with the educational authorities.

Complaints are made that it is interfering with the "serious treatise"—straight drama—and the educationalists have appealed to the new comic opera librettists and composers to cease production.

The governor of Istanbul, however, says that there is not enough money to be made as yet in Turkish straight drama, and so the lighter brand of theatrical entertainment will continue.

life worth living and are probably seldom heard to complain.

But perhaps there is a fourth consolation unsung by sage Morley, but none the less consoling to man. The fourth consolation is the power to think. There is no greater consolation, than the ability to think alone. Relatively few people can tolerate meditating solitude, but many envy those who can. There are men and women who know of no better company than their own thoughts. They are called philosophers and their thoughts and words are eagerly sought after by solitude-fearing people. We will extend Morley's prime consolations to include "thought."

Consoling ourselves with thought don't we finally find that all four consolations are but symbols of something else—companionship? Why does man turn to God, love, money or his thoughts for company? Isn't it a fact in the final analysis that man's one consolation is society, not necessarily of people, but of something? Some then will find consolation in God, others in love, others in money and still others in their thoughts, but all in the companionship thus offered to them.
